

Doss-House / Nursery Rhyme

Biography

After playing guitar in his teens, Alex Ritch discovered there were new musical possibilities using the computer. He then began, in early 2000, to record under the pseudonym "doss-house". Fascinated by the oneiric world, Alex seeks to recreate the musically naivete of childhood, and the madness of dreams. His music is mainly influenced by electronica/IDM, and such names as Plaid, Aphex Twin and Kettel.

He released his first album Dreamland, with a mixture of original compositions, and a few remixes. In parallel, he is working with the writer Sebastian Bellanger on the soundtrack of his novel Lunerf and of his book Lacryma. Following Dreamland, came an EP on the Dedpop label in 2008.

Subsequently, his encounters with fellow electronica artists Ritzen and John Merick, give birth to the project Aniline, and the trio Meriline Avenue. Alex then joined the BEE Records label in 2012.

Nursery Rhyme

In his first album, Nursery Rhyme, Doss-House is playing with melody coming from our childhood. No surprise if you find in it simply and catchy melo that fix in your head. First in this magic music box you'll find of course sweets melo inspired by Nursery Rhyme and directly referring to our childhood in Doorbell, Polyphasic Sleep, Arrow Of Time and Sea Nymph. Then Hal°gen and Slow Bubble's Space, like between two ages with synthetic keyboards endly both in some kind of sea of tranquility. You'll also find some more electronica tracks like Drew Am, Alkhayma, Virgule, Vanille and Broken Legs elevating those childlike, funny, warm and sweet melody. And then, suddenly, like in the middle of a levitation from cloud to cloud, under a bright and blue sky, you can hear suddenly a reassuring voice lulling you with his piano and his gentle glitchy rythm on L4ment. If i were you i would file this album close to Plaid, Kettel, Fizzarum and Ruxpin.
